DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. 121:

- I. Claims 1-19, 24-25 and 31, drawn to peptides comprising an Rpt1 domain as well as related vectors and cells, are classified in class 530, subclass 350.
- II. Claims 32 and 41, drawn to methods of inhibition of HIV-1 replication or production, are classified in class 424, subclass 160.1.
- III. Claims 49 and 62, drawn to a method and oligonucleotide for inhibiting INI1/hSNF5 gene, classified in class 424, subclass 160.1.
- IV. Claims 72 and 81, drawn to methods of evaluating a test compound in inhibiting replication or production of HIV-1, classified in class 435, subclass 5.

Inventions I and II are related as product and processes of use. The inventions can be shown to be distinct if either or both of the following can be shown: (1) the process for using the product as claimed can be practiced with another materially different product or (2) the product as claimed can be used in a materially different process of using that product. See MPEP § 806.05(h). In the instant case, the products claimed in Invention I may have a materially different process of use from than the uses claimed in Invention II. These peptides, for example, may be used for protein purification or detection assays. Thus, Invention I is distinct from Invention II.

Inventions I and III-IV are unrelated. Inventions are unrelated if it can be shown that they are not disclosed as capable of use together and they have different designs, modes of operation, and effects (MPEP § 802.01 and § 806.06). In the instant case, the specification does not disclose a use wherein the peptide of Rpt1 domain is involved in the methods of either Invention III or IV.

Inventions II-IV are related. The related inventions are distinct if the inventions as claimed do not overlap in scope, i.e., are mutually exclusive; the inventions as claimed are not obvious variants; and the inventions as claimed are either not capable of use together or can have a materially different design, mode of operation, function, or effect. See MPEP § 806.05(j). Invention II is drawn to methods of inhibiting replication or virion production of HIV-1 by peptide or vector treatment in a cell. Invention III is drawn to methods of inhibiting the replication or virion production of HIV-1 via inhibiting the INI1/SNF5 gene. Finally, invention IV is drawn to methods of evaluating a test compound in inhibiting replication or production of HIV-1 via activity of INI1/SNF5. Because they are methods with different modes of operation, with respect to starting materials, physiological mechanisms, protocol procedures, and end products, inventions II, III and IV are patentably distinct.

Species Election

An election of Invention I requires a further election of one of the following cell types:

- a. hematopoietic stem cell; and

b. T cell.

Species a-b are unrelated. Inventions are unrelated if it can be shown that they are not disclosed as capable of use together and they have different designs, modes of operation, and effects (MPEP § 802.01 and § 806.06). In the instant case, the specification does not reveal a use for combining a hematopoietic stem cell with a T cell. Thus, Species a-b are distinct inventions.

Applicant is required under 35 U.S.C. 121 to elect a single disclosed species for prosecution on the merits to which the claims shall be restricted if no generic claim is finally held to be allowable. Currently, Claims 1, 49, 72 and 81 are generic.

Applicant is advised that a reply to this requirement must include an identification of the species that is elected consonant with this requirement, and a listing of all claims readable thereon, including any claims subsequently added. An argument that a claim is allowable or that all claims are generic is considered nonresponsive unless accompanied by an election.

Upon the allowance of a generic claim, applicant will be entitled to consideration of claims to additional species which depend from or otherwise require all the limitations of an allowable generic claim as provided by 37 CFR 1.141. If claims are added after the election, applicant must indicate which are readable upon the elected species. MPEP § 809.02(a).

Conclusion

Because these inventions are independent or distinct for the reasons given above and have acquired a separate status in the art in view of their different classification, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.
